Peace Lily Spathiphyllum

Peace lilies are native of South and Central American. They are great plants for reducing the toxins in your home or office. Which will help you breath better. Call it a clean air plant.

Grow Peace Lilies in low to medium light. A north, east or filtered window area is ideal.

Do not let this plant dry out and droop between watering. This could cause brown leaf tips.

If it needs repotting, repot it using a good house-plant soil mix. Add worm casting to it to give it some natural nutrients.

Brown tips could also be signs of salt buildup in the soil from fertilizer, over or under watering, low humidity levels. Use a humidity tray to raise the humidity.
