RUBBER PLANT FICUS ELASTICA

Rubber Plants are fairly easy if you give it enough light and water. It is native to India.

Give rubber plants plenty of light. It can tolerate low light but will do better if given more.

Water rubber plants thoroughly then let it dry slightly.

Repot using a good houseplant potting soil with worm casting added to the mix. This gives them natural feeding.

You may prune this plant any time it out grows its space. Be careful though, it will drip white juice onto your floor and stain your clothes.

You usually can find this growing as a tree form or a small bush at your local plant store.
